

German Employment Law for Line Managers

Prevent costly mistakes for your business

Multinational organisations are frequently organised along matrix structures. Inevitably such structures come with significant challenges: line managers and senior executives and HR professionals whose team responsibilities include the management of staff in Germany are expected to be familiar with the dos and don'ts of German employment law. This seminar provides an essential overview of the key areas of German employment law, and how it influences everyday situations at work.

Content

Background

- Sources of employment law – plus similarities and key differences compared to common law jurisdictions.
- Cultural differences in inter-personal relations.
- The German corporate structure and its impact on the management function.
- Key players: trade unions, works councils and employer associations.

Before employment

- The recruitment process – dos and don'ts.
- The contract – offer, terms, clauses, express and implied terms.
- References, what to be aware of.
- Pitfalls to avoid.

During employment

- Probationary period and review.
- Dealing with part-time, agency and fixed-term contract workers.
- Flexible working requests.
